

Synthology.net License Agreement

This license agreement is an agreement between you, the customer, and Synthology.net. It governs your use of the sound library ES2 Essentials supplied to you by Synthology.net. By extracting the archive on MAC / starting the install procedure on WINDOWS systems or otherwise extracting and using any of the sounds provided, you agree to be legally bound by the terms of this license agreement. All synthesizer patches and all other material of this product is produced exclusively by Synthology.net. You, the customer, can use any of these sounds in your own commercial or non-commercial music and / or audio productions without the prior permission from Synthology.net under the terms of this agreement.

Each soundset is personally registered and licensed to you, the customer. With the purchase of this sound library you have acquired a single license, means only you are allowed to make use of any the contained sounds. You may make one copy of the library on CD for your own backup purposes, but you are NOT allowed to share any of these sounds, nor lend or rent them, re-issue or redistribute them (in whole or in parts), sell them or re-sale or re-compile the patches. Any other use (apart from using the sounds in your own audio productions) is strictly prohibited by law. The license will terminate automatically without notice by Synthology.net, if you fail to comply with any provision of this license. Upon termination you shall destroy all copies of this sound library immediately.
